Col. Orr's Regiment. A beautiful flag was presented to this regiment, now on Sullivan's Island, by the ladies of Charleston, on Friday last. Col. James W. flayne presented the flag, which was received for the benefit of the soldiers, have the pleasby Col. Orr, who made a few app opriate and ure of presenting to the Treasurer, the sum of patriotic remarks.

The flag is of chaste and simple design - a wilk field, displaying on one side the Palmetto the wants of those who have gone forth to of and Crescent, and the words, "First Regiment | fer their lives, if necessary on the altar of their Rifles S. C. V.," aud on the reverse the Confederate stars and bars.

Fremont. If the telegraph brings us the truth, this recreant is about to meet with his deserts. His contracts have been repud ited at Washington, his drafts dishonored, his proclamations modified, and now he is ordered to report at headquarters for court-martial. Truly the way of the transgressor is hard, and the notorious "path finder" is about cutering upon the roughest journey that ever he has travelled. His proclamation on entering upon his willtary career was even too bloody for his villainous chief, and such as to call forth the indignation of every one not lost to the emotions of humanity. He is on the high road to that disgrace and degredation he so righteously deserves. Carolinian moment this morning, I will employ it in writing you a short note. I would have rement: written you earlier according to promise, but we have had so much sickness in our Canry and so many deaths that I have no disposition, whatever, to write the sad facts half, and heavy attempts to charge our lines, to our friends. Our Regiment has lost in all, since we reached Virginia, forty one men; and of these the Cowpens Guards have lost six; viz. J. C. Turner, J. C. Robbs, John N. Ward, W. J. Cole, James Petty, and Smith Harris. And these losses for the most part, have resulted from Measels. The health of our regiment is now rapidly improving and I think we will, in the course of a week or two, be able to turn out again a fine body of men. On Saturday last we were ordered to the advance position of the army of the Potomac to relieve another regiment from Picket duty, and . we occupie t this position for seven days. D was captured in the battle at Manassas, This was truly an interesting place, for there was and almost a continuous firing kept up between our pickets and those of the enemy, but with no serious injury to our men, and not a great deal to the Feder nls. Our Pickets killed one Vermonter in a form of a Federal officer by some kind ladies few paces of our line and took one German prisoner, and it is thought that six or eight more of the enemy were killed at some distance from our line, but of this there is no certainty. Our Regiment was posted at a hill called Brandimore Castle, some five or six miles from Washington City and about a mile north of Tinton's Hill We staid one night in the little village of Fall's Church.
